They Looked to Throne For Fair Treatment

(This is the 11th chapter of "The Strangers," a searching report on the plight of B.C.'s native Indians)

By G. E. MORTIMORE

For many years the Indians hoped that the British Crown and the Privy Council would see that they were paid for the land that had been occupied by the whites in British Columbia.

Because the names of monarchs and their representatives had been signed to treaties and proclamations, the Indians were (and some of them still are) inclined to look to the Throne for fair treatment.

They viewed themselves as separate people, subject to the Crown but not wholly subject to Canada. They sought compensation for lands taken from them by B.C. and by Canada. Why should the dispute be heard in the tribunals of their opponent?

Cowichan Indians sent a deputation to the King of England in 1909 to press their land claims. Three years later a delegation representing 20 groups of Indians, supported by a white organization, the "Friends of the Indians," petitioned the King to allow their land claims to go to the Privy Council.

Nisga people of the Nass River, whose claims were regarded as a test case for all B.C. Indians, petitioned the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London in 1912.

Each time the answer was the same: the case would have to go through the Canadian courts first.

It wasn't that the King and the Privy Council were unsympathetic to Indian claims. The law said that appeals—whether from Indians or any other racial group—must follow a regular course through the courts, ending in the highest court of the Commonwealth.

Claim Not Admitted

The Indian claim to the right of direct appeal was not admitted.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, Liberal prime minister, was willing to have the question of Indian land title in B.C. submitted to the Canadian courts. His government even amended the Indian Act to make certain that such an appeal was possible. But the Indians would not lodge an appeal. Many observers feel that in that respect they were badly advised.

In 1911 the Liberals went out and Sir Robert Borden's Conservatives came in. Their attitude to the Indians was less sympathetic. The Indians at last agreed to submit their claims to the Canadian courts. The Federal government agreed to let them do so, subject to one condition.

Before they went to court, they had to promise in advance to accept reserves assigned to them as full and final settlement of their claims. In other words, they were allowed to enter the contest providing they agreed that there would be no prize. Had they won the lawsuit, it would have been an empty victory. The Indians refused the offer.

On the other hand, had they won the lawsuit with no conditions attached, there would have been a cloud on all land titles issued by the province in the vast area affected. The government could not afford the risk that the Indians would be declared the outright owners of two-thirds of B.C.

However, the government might have imposed less stringent conditions: perhaps a promise by the Indians not to claim title to any lands until a rate of compensation had been mutually agreed upon.

A royal commission sat from 1913 to 1916, to review existing reserves and decide whether each band had the right amount of land for its needs.

"My father appeared before the stern old royal commissioner," says Chief Bill Scow of Alert Bay. "The commissioner asked him 'What do you want all that land along the beach for?' My father said: 'Digging clams.'"

"What about all that land back in the woods? To get wood to build our canoes," my father said. The commissioner said they didn't need all that land.

The commission cut off 47,058 acres from Indian reserves in B.C., and added 87,291. By a curious coincidence, some of the land that the commission took away from the Indians as surplus had extensive stands of timber.

It seemed that the Indians

TORONTO (CP)—The legality of Vancouver's city sports law, which permits organized Sunday games, is to be challenged in the Supreme Court of Canada. The Lord's Day Alliance executive said Wednesday.

Vancouver Appeals To Ross

VANCOUVER (CP)—City council decided Wednesday that if it does not receive an answer to its last two wires asking for action on a proposed sewage treatment plant, it will ask the lieutenant-governor to intervene.

The council said it had not received a reply from the government since it sent the first wire last month. Another telegram was sent Tuesday and council recessed Wednesday while Mayor Fred Hume telephoned the premier, who was not in his office.

The council said the interests of Vancouver citizens were being ignored, and decided to hold a special meeting today in another attempt to reach the premier by telephone.

The city is asking for a cabinet decision on the proposed Iona Island treatment plant.

'Knock Her Down —She'll Love You!'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Dr. Cleo Dawson, a woman psychologist, told members of the Greater Buffalo Advertising Club yesterday there's only one thing to do when the wife belittles you.

"Don't hesitate," she said. "Knock her down. Absolutely flatten her. That's what she really wants. She'll love you for it."

CITY MAN DIES OF STARVATION

How Did It Happen?

Police, welfare officials, and members of the Chinese community were still trying to determine last night why elderly Doy Lum was found in such a pathetic state before he died yesterday.

There were conflicting reports about why he had reached such a state, why he had not been reported to welfare officials, and how he got to the bottom of the stairs of the Herald Street apartment where he lived.

WAITING FOR HOSPITAL

Mrs. Eric Joe, wife of the landlord of the building, said: "He was a very sick man and had been waiting to get a hospital room and couldn't—some of the other tenants carried him down on a mattress, as a way to make sure police would take him to the hospital."

Mrs. Joe said she knew nothing of the man or his condition until yesterday.

Administrators of both St. Joseph's Hospital and Royal Jubilee Hospital said they had never received an application for a hospital bed from Mr. Lum.

"WOULD HAVE HELPED"

Social welfare worker Mark King, who deals with the Chinese community, said an application had never been received by the Chinese hospital either. "If we had known of his case, we would certainly have helped him," he said.

"In cases of this type neighbors or friends usually contact us," he said.

NO EXCUSE

Doy was receiving a $55 a month old-age pension, plus a $20 bonus, and was the holder of a provincial medical card entitling him to free medical expenses, Mr. King said.

"Many of them (elderly Chinese) refuse any assistance at all there is no excuse for him," he said.

"WEAK OR LAZY"

First reports indicated the man had fallen down the flight of stairs to the street level, but police were told he collapsed at the bottom, and an unidentified man covered Doy with a blanket and called for the police ambulance.

Investigating detectives said Doy's small room was in "deplorable" condition, absolutely filthy, and full of fleas, in deplorable the man had been very weak or "lazy."

Dictator Sleeps on Floor

The life of a new dictator appears to be no bed of roses judging by the sleeping habits of Abdel Kassem, strong man of Iraq. During the day Brig. Kassem spends most of his time behind his Baghdad desk. At night he folds a blanket in front of the desk and sleeps on the cold, tile floor.

Frantic Search For Little Girl

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—A huge, desperate party of 1,500 persons continued a search beneath thick, black clouds until darkness Wednesday, for a two-year-old girl missing at nearby Willow River.

Cindy Lou MacLaine has been gone from her home since 9 a.m. Tuesday. Many businesses closed Wednesday and employees joined with police and hundreds of others in a hunt for the child.

The MacLaines moved to a new home in Willow River Sunday. Their former home is a mile away.

"If only Cindy Lou would have shouted," said the child's 22-year-old mother Gladys Wednesday. "If only she had cried I would have looked and seen where she was."

Mrs. MacLaine is being kept under sedation. A tracking dog was flown 200 miles to the scene late Tuesday but rain early Wednesday washed away any useful scent. Police let the dog sniff at a tiny red jacket and a pair of brown oxfords later in the day, but it helped little. Rain threatened again Wednesday night.

The Prince George branches of the Red Cross and Salvation Army brought blankets for those who asked to stay out doors during the night. The women of Willow River kept searchers stocked with food.

Schools were closed in the area Wednesday too, as children helped in the search. Most of the area along the river is sodden with recent rain.

Half-a-dozen aircraft failed to spot the child from the air.

Alf Kiebel, 24, an amateur skindiver, searched the banks of Willow River Wednesday.

Weighed Sixty Pounds

By BARNEY MCKINLEY

An elderly Chinese, described as the "worst case of neglect" ever seen by St. Joseph's Hospital emergency staffs, died yesterday morning, friendless and alone.

Hospital authorities said he weighed less than 60 pounds, had finger and toe nails an inch long, and was in a state of filth as though "he had been living for months in a cellar."

FOUND ON SIDEWALK

Police said the dead man had been identified as Doy Lum, about 70 of 5'6 1/2. Herald in the Chinese section of the city.

The elderly Chinese was found unconscious outside the door of the address where he lived alone and was taken to hospital by police around 1 p.m. Tuesday, after they received a phone call from an unidentified man.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

The hospital said Lum was in critical condition when he was brought to the emergency and died less than 24 hours later without regaining consciousness.

Circumstances of the death are being investigated by city police, welfare and health departments.

City medical health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy said her department "didn't know a thing" about the elderly Chinese whose emaciated condition indicated he had died slowly of starvation.

IT'S APPALLING

"We want to know more about this," she said. "It's an appalling thing. It looked as though he was dropped there. There is something behind this."

"I can't understand why he didn't come to the attention of authorities before," Dr. Mahaffy said. "We check all living quarters."

Chinese spokesmen said the dead man came originally from China, but had been in the Victoria area "for 30 or 40 years."

LIVED ALL ALONE

"He lived all alone in one of these self-contained rooms. When he didn't show up no one would know."

Police were first notified about Lum by a caller who identified himself as "John Joe" of the Chinese Hospital, they said. But a hospital spokesman said later no employee of that name was known.

Mayor Percy Scourrah described the man's death as "a dreadful thing to happen." He added that he didn't understand how it could happen.

"Someone didn't report what was happening," he said. "If it had been brought to the health department, they would have looked after him, because no one is allowed to starve. It's strange no one reported it. It is a terrible thing."

Land Grab Feared

Police Kill Natives Who Fight Eviction

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Police Wednesday killed eight Africans and injured 14 when villagers armed with spears refused to quit their homes on land wanted for an artificial lake.

The Africans had been ordered to move to higher ground from the Gwembe Valley where the waters of the Zambezi will start to rise later this year to form a lake for the Kariba hydro-electric dam project.

An official statement said the Africans made "determined charges" against the police and threw spears at them.

The police suffered one minor casualty.

PERSUASION FAILED

Governor Sir Arthur Benson said in a broadcast that Africans were told "over and over again" they would have to move to new homes provided by the government but they still refused to move.

Benson said he went to the area last Saturday and persuaded about 100 to listen to him. Monday he returned. But this time "evil people" had done their work and only 15 attended his meeting.

"They had been told they were being moved not because the waters would come up but because the Europeans wanted to take their lands."

The council said the interests of Vancouver citizens were being ignored, and decided to hold a special meeting today in another attempt to reach the premier by telephone.

The city is asking for a cabinet decision on the proposed Iona Island treatment plant.

LONDON (AP)—Russia and Red China are expected to smash all-time records in their grain harvests this year, and the prospect is worrying some Western governments.

Detailed estimates of phenomenal crops have been broadcast recently by Moscow and Peking radios. And Western experts, after allowing for possible exaggerations, are inclined to think Russia's yield will at least be as high as the bumper 1956 harvest and that China's will hit a new peak.

One Western diplomat commented: "They would be able to undercut Western prices in the rice markets of the East and the wheat markets of the West. And they could seek to win friends and influence people with judicious gifts of food."

Such an action could harm Western economies if the Russians seriously undercut Canadian and American wheat prices, since Canada and the United States themselves have been troubled in recent years by big surpluses.

'Snow Whites' Steal Dwarfs

CHICAGO (AP)—Two men have been placed on probation for a year for playing Snow White with someone else's dwarfs.

The 12 concrete dwarfs decorated the lawn of a Chicago householder, Raymond Peterson and Ronald Wambaja, both 22, kidnapped them in two nighttime visits to the lawn in August.

The theft might have gone unsolved if Peterson had not called the police.

Peterson and Wambaja pleaded guilty Tuesday to a theft charge. They said they took the statues as a prank and planned to give them to friends.

Land Fraud Still Rankles

had been given poor land for good. The land added was valued at $444,838; but the land taken away was valued at $1,522,704.

Land was cut off because the Indians "didn't need it." The population had dwindled. Some bands had fallen to a low strength for the simple reason that people had died in large numbers of white man's diseases, with little medical help.

When their lands were taken away, they must have felt that insult had been added to injury.

The province insisted that if Indians left their land for any reason, the land would revert to the province. In the McKenna-McBride agreement, between Dominion and province, B.C. had waived its reversionary right, except that if a band became extinct, its land and land monies would revert to the province. But the province reopened the question. Ottawa settled it by passing a bill to make the reversionary right depend on the decision of the Governor-General-in-council.

The Allied Tribes of British Columbia rejected the findings of the reserve commission. They contended that the land title question should be settled before reserves were allotted; that additional reserve lands were too small; that inequalities between bands had not been set right; and that all proceeds from cut-off lands should go in an Indian trust fund.

Andy Paul, secretary to the executive committee, Allied Tribes, the Rev. Peter Kelly, D.D., chairman, and the Rev. A. E. O'Meara, counsel, put their case to a Senate-Commons committee in 1926.

In addition to the land title claim, the Allied Tribes made a number of other requests. They asked that compensation be given for inequalities of acreage in reserves and for the fact that some bands had inferior lands. They asked for "an adequate system of education" and "an adequate system of medical aid and hospitals." They urged that the Indian Act be revised.

The committee said that Indian lands belonged to the whites by right of conquest. Hudson's Bay posts had been fortified, the committee pointed out as evidence.

In fact, the Indians of Victoria helped build the fort. There had been small outbreaks of violence in parts of the province, but never a war. Unless fraud and legal finagling are methods of warfare, the Indians of B.C. were never conquered.

MADE NO CLAIMS

The committee also said that the Indians had made no claims of possession until the last 15 years; that they had accepted reserves without protesting, and that they had had no real system of land ownership in pre-white days.

Yet one of the witnesses, Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, deputy superintendent-general of Indian affairs, had testified as follows: "From the year 1875 until the present time there has been a definite claim, growing in clearness as the years went by, gradually developing into an organized plan, to compel the Provincial and Dominion governments to acknowledge an aboriginal title and give compensation for it."

A number of protests by Indian bands against the reserves allotted had been placed on record. Those who refused to deal with commissioners or accept their reserves fared worse, not better, than those who did accept. The holdouts got only small amounts of land.

BRUSQUE, HAUGHTY

The tone of the committee's report was brusque, haughty and condescending. After dismissing the Indians' claims and warning that its decision was final, the committee announced that it had decided to award the Indians of B.C. $100,000 a year, to be spent on their behalf on worthwhile projects.

In reply to some of the other requests, the committee said that "there is already in existence throughout the province a system of education for Indians," and "there is already a system of medical aid and hospitals."

However, the committee did acknowledge that the Indian tuberculosis rate was too high, and should be reduced. In regard to changes in the law, the committee declared: "Parliament will no doubt revise and amend the Indian Act from time to time in the interests of the Indians as often as is found necessary."

The committee's pronouncement said in part: "The fact was admitted that it was not until about 15 years ago that

Pressure on Tribes 'May Mean Ruin'

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Indian tribes are being subjected to "heavy administrative and psychological pressure" to get them to agree to termination of federal trusteeships, an Indian spokesman said yesterday.

Joseph Garry, president of the National Council of American Indians, said Indian leaders feel such termination at this time, "would lead to immediate ruin of the tribes."

Garry said leaders of 70 tribes from 25 states will meet Sept. 15 in Missoula, Mont., "to consider how best to defend themselves against pressure... which could mean the end of their tribal existence."

aboriginal title was first put forward as a formal legal claim by those who have ever since made it a bone of contention and some a source of livelihood as well."

NOTES WITH REGRET
"The committee notes with regret the existence of agitation, not only in British Columbia but with Indians in other parts of the Dominion, which agitation may be called mischievous, by which the Indians are deceived and led to expect benefits from claims more or less fictitious."

"Such agitation, often carried on by designing white men, is to be deplored and should be discontinued, as the government of the country is at all times ready to protect the interests of the Indians and to redress real grievances where such are shown to exist."

SANCTIONED
At the time this sanctioning judgment was written, Indians were dying in thousands of disease and neglect, and many of their children denied access to adequate schools.

Some of the Indian residential schools were good. Others were little better than prisons for juveniles, where boys and girls passed half their waking hours in forced labor and a brief time each day in study. Thousands of Indians were demoralized, disease-ridden and on the edge of starvation. Outdated sections of the law kept Indians in a status close to that of children or mental patients.

LESS THAN $28
As evidence of generosity, the committee cited the sum of $690,693 which had been spent on B.C. Indians in the year 1925-26 — something less than $28 a head.

Although the committee rehashed the land title claims, it paid some grudging attention to Indian demands for better education and health services. The seeds of a new Indian policy may have been planted at the hearings.

The Allied tribes never accepted the committee's report, or acknowledged that the $100,000 a year B.C. special vote was a payment for the surrender of Indian land title.

The Federal government served notice that the matter was closed. Boundaries of the reserves were proclaimed to be final in 1934. However, the Federal government since that time has sought to add territory to a few reserves so as to meet changing economic conditions.

MOSTLY SMALL
British Columbia reserves are numerous and mostly small. The 204 bands in B.C. now hold 1,627 reserves, nearly three times the number of reserves held by all other Indians of Canada put together.

But the total acreage of B.C. reserves is only 820,489. In Ontario, 118 Indian bands hold 166 reserves of 1,560,489 acres; and in Alberta, 44 bands hold 90 reserves of 1,533,061 acres.

Some interior B.C. reserves are large, because they were intended for farming and ranching. Most coast reserves are comparatively small. The coast people drew the bulk of their living from the sea. Their reserves were intended to be bases of operation, not self-contained economic units.

COMING OF WHITE MEN
But because of the coming of the white men, the fishing industry grows crowded. Indians are increasing in numbers. On some reserves there is barely enough room for the people to live.

"The Indians' attitude in the old days was: 'If the white people want to come, they can come in and live anywhere they want to.'" Chief William Scow observes. "There's room for 'em," they said.

"Some of the people said the white race was so numerous that they would over-populate the country, that the white men ity join the Dominion in providing low-interest funds for housing, or in offering scholarships.

The provincial government's policy is to make no further lands available for reserves. However, the Hon. Ray Williams, minister of lands and forests, indicated in a statement to this reporter, "a specific application in the public interest would, no doubt, be given consideration by the province."

So far, the provincial government's gestures toward the Indians have been mostly those that cost nothing — extending Indians the provincial vote and allowing them limited liquor rights. If the government were to change its mind and show some generosity, it might do something to wipe out the offenses of earlier provincial governments. It might make a lot of friends among the Indians.

There is still a faction among B.C. Indians which hopes to re-new the fight over B.C. land title. Thousands of "moderate" Indians hope that provincial and federal governments will make amends for what the Indians consider to be the injustices of the past.

No settlement of the Indian land question will please everybody. The Indians would be wise to keep pressing the issue as long as there is any hope of making

Proposed Law Criticized

Bill Loophole For Douks?

of Canada's proposed bill of rights was approved but the text is in need of many revisions, a civil liberties committee of the Canadian Bar Association decided yesterday.

The bill's clauses were roundly criticized by almost all the 30 lawyers who took part in the two-hour debate.

Alex W. Fisher of Vancouver said the bill could possibly interfere with laws already in force in the provinces.

ALL CHILDREN

He referred specifically to British Columbia where he said the government requires all children to attend school between the ages of 6 and 14 years.

In British Columbia, he said, the Doukhobors believe by their religion that their children do not have to attend school. Under the proposed bill the clause referring to freedom of religious beliefs would possibly provide a clear-cut infraction.

Chairman David W. Mundell of Toronto, in calling for a resolution, summed up the main objections to the bill as including its legal uncertainties; whether it should be an act of Parliament or an amendment of the British North America Act; whether it should be merely a declaration or have legal operations.

said "most of this so-called legislation has been imbedded in the common law of the land for over a century."

M. C. Shumatcher of Regina, questioning the status of the bill as an act of Parliament rather than an amendment to the British North America Act, said "what Parliament does today it can undo tomorrow."

Austin Cooper of Toronto wondered whether capital punishment might not be abolished under the section of the act that refers to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment of a criminal.

Parliament Prorogued

WITH Parliament prorogued, the test of administration in difficult, changing times now faces the Progressive Conservatives at Ottawa. Canada's position in international relations remains unchanged, with a sharpened challenge to use its best endeavors to draw dissidents together at world conference tables. Vis-a-vis the United States, the Dominion has delicate decisions to make in economic and political climates subject to squalls and sudden changes of the wind. At home, the Diefenbaker government has its hands full with internal problems pressing for early, and in many instances difficult, decisions.

The first session of the 24th Parliament of the Dominion did little to ease the administration's task in any significant respect. There are crucial decisions to be made in defence programming for the armed forces by air and at sea. The business recession in the United States, with its inevitable effect on Canada, has left a backlog of unemployment as one of the pressing problems facing this country in the coming winter. Labor-management relations have been in a state of acute upheaval all year, and the situation has not stabilized yet. Import and export trade, the level of the Canadian dollar, and stiffer competition for Canada's goods in world markets are all making their impressions on the year.

Superimposed on all this are the problems of the provinces and the municipalities as they bear on federal matters. There is the new national scheme of health insurance to introduce and make workable; the complicated and urgent issue of freight rates across the country to be determined; and the perennial appeals of the provinces for a larger share of the national purse. Basically most of these problems in one form or another faced the administration's predecessors in office, though in much different economic circumstances. Beyond the international, national and regional problems, inherited and acquired, the government has its own platform and pledges to the electorate to consider. It seems a full docket.

The prime minister and members of his cabinet exhibited a cautious approach to these matters during the first session of the new Parliament. Some Progressive Conservative pledges, notably those to the grain growers and the Maritimes, were reaffirmed and partially introduced. The administration worked for a cooling off period in industrial disputes, and for the most part avoided intervention. The main line of Canada's external policy was continued. The government applied a new formula to the handling of the war debt through a large refunding loan, the consequences of which will carry forward for some time. Some major decisions were suspended, and these will have to come soon.

A Go-Ahead Signal

UNIVERSITIES are not effected in a day and Victoria College is not scheduled to reach that level tomorrow but prospects of such eventual fulfillment are brightening. At least no frowning mandatory authority will turn thumbs down, all else being favorable. That much is now clear with disclosure that UBC has approved new courses at the college beyond the two-year level, and offers no objection to establishment of third and fourth-year courses leading to UBC degrees.

Any idea that UBC, the college's scholastic parent, was bent on preventing expansion of the college into a full-fledged university of limited facilities can now be eliminated. The idea may have been exaggerated in the first place, although it did seem that Point Grey authorities were not keen on such elevation, but it now ceases to be a factor. The UBC board can be commended for its breadth of view and recognition of the claims of Victoria for a degree-earning education institution.

Actually no rivalry is involved. The ambition to establish a university here in no sense threatens the supremacy of the Point Grey institution. In fact it complements it, and it should be a matter of welcome rather than otherwise because of the relief a local university would be to UBC. The latter is growing to such an extent both scholastic and physical pressures would be eased were Victoria and Vancouver Island students able to complete their university work here instead of adding to the complexities of Point Grey. The advantage this would be to local students, incidentally, is self-evident.

That development is yet not close, but the pathway has been considerably cleared by UBC's position in the matter having been outlined. It becomes in effect a go-ahead signal for local interests to pursue the proposition with renewed enthusiasm. Several problems have to be dealt with, such as financing, creation of needed facilities, buildings and campus. With these in sight there would be no dearth of students. It is likely that the provincial government also is aware of the desirability of establishing another university in the province, or at least a degree-bearing secondary adjunct, as is becoming the pattern in other provinces. The project may still be a long-term one, but it can be brought to fruition the quicker and more determinedly local support is harnessed to the task.

Why Meddle with Trading?

WHY must the city council get itself embroiled yet again in this interminable dispute over shopping hours? Surely after all these years of fruitless argument it should be obvious to the mayor and councillors that this is a matter which can never be settled satisfactorily by way of regulation.

The question of regulation of stores as to trading hours is not amenable to any simple solution except one: to throw out official controls altogether. Any council which tries to control hours of business finds itself in the unenviable position of the bird in the badminton game, batted by both sides. In rewriting the Municipal Act the provincial government skillfully evaded responsibility and passed the buck to the municipalities. But there is a way of escape: the Victoria council could dispense with control of hours altogether by the simple expedient of widening the exemptions from half-day closure to cover every branch of retail trading.

That would return the issue to the merchants themselves, to whom it belongs. Regulation of trading hours is nothing more or less than regulation of competition, which isn't or shouldn't be the business of a municipal council. Why waste time and money on yet another survey the result of which, judging from past experience, is unlikely to determine anything?

Let the merchants settle this thing among themselves if they can; and if they can't, let them go their own respective ways. If a retailer prefers to close for a full day instead of a half day, that's his business. Conversely, if he chooses to stay open for six days, that should still be his business. Can anyone name a single purpose in the civic sense accomplished by council intervention?

Interpreting the News

Flare-Up Concerted and Timed

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PRESIDENT Eisenhower by his blunt warning to Red China, has risked war rather than lose face in Asia.

It is apparent that Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles believe compromise with the Red Chinese now would be disastrous to United States prestige in the Far East and Southeast Asia.

If the Red Chinese were merely making a probing action in their bombardment of Quemoy and other offshore islands, they now have their answer.

If they seriously plan to take Quemoy and the Matsus as a prelude to action against Formosa, it seems definite they will have to fight U.S. forces.

It is generally believed the forces of Chiang Kai-shek would be unable to hold the islands against a determined attack from the mainland. Some observers have said—perhaps cynically—that Chiang's aim all along has been to entangle the Red Chinese and Americans in conflict to open the way for his reconquest of the mainland.

Eisenhower's words pointed up another fact: the Red Chinese have been able to excite a world crisis at the price of artillery shells and a few gunboats while making ominous threats but committing themselves to nothing new.

Perhaps they hoped for easy gains, as in 1955 when Chiang's forces evacuated the Tachen Islands at the urging of the U.S. after a bombardment.

The timing of the current action can be no accident, especially in view of the strategy meeting held in Peking early in August between Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Red China's Mao Tse-tung. As pressure eased in the Middle East, the Communist chiefs mapped new tensions in the Far East.

Timing appears all important in view of the Sept. 16 opening of the United Nations General Assembly. Mao has long hungered for the UN seat held by his rival Chiang.

No one predicts that mere possession of Quemoy or the other islands would decide the issue of admitting Red China to the UN.

Observers believe Red China and Russia would welcome a UN debate that might dwell on the weakness of Formosa and the strength of the mainland Chinese with their population of 600,000,000 and growing industrial power. Questions would be asked as to what will happen when Chiang, now 71, passes from the scene.

"Well, you can't leave us now."

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT is not likely that a young gallant escorting his lady friend along Douglas Street will note any connection between the mayor's appeal for use of the trash cans and the fact that he walks on the curb side of the pavement. None of us being untrammelled by the past, of course, there is.

A mere matter of politeness, an adherence to convention, is what causes the male to take the outside position on city streets. Once it was much different. Once he was literally the protector of his fair companion, a willing victim to the kitchen refuse dumped inelegantly from high windows in a parabolic curve. This is such a deodorant age the mind boggles at what must have been the state of civic thoroughfares in the "good old days."

One doubts this ancient custom of housecleaning ever held sway in Victoria; it is a visit to older lands that reminds one how anti-septic are the habits of the twentieth century. For one thing, in the beginnings of our fair city there were few if any high buildings and a slop-thrasher would invite retaliation at the ground level. For another, our black-bearded forbears may have been diamonds in the rough but presumably they had some sense of hygiene even if modern amenities were missing. For all I know, also, not having been there, ladies did not walk the streets of early Victoria but were driven in state as befitted their charms.

Yet the trash cans the Mayor wants us to use are simply the evolution of the trash carts, which, I must suppose, came along nightly to remove the garbage thrown so inconsiderately from kitchen windows. And the atavistic impulse to pitch things in the gutter with wild abandon is still part and parcel of human nature, else the Mayor would have no cause to beseech our co-operation. Left to ourselves with no one looking, it would seem, we are a careless lot. Certainly a visit to a park or beach or campsite, after everyone has gone home, might remind us we are as closely related to the ancient slop-thrasher as the can is to the cart.

I should like to think we will pay heed to the Mayor, even if it means on yours truly's part a stern resolve never to toss away negligently an empty cigarette carton but instead to carry it carefully to the nearest rubbish receptacle. There are enough of these around to obviate any physical hardship even if walking in this rapid transit era is definitely demode. Temptation might perhaps be removed in large part if so many items of purchase didn't have packets round them but that is a useless thought. They have, and it behooves us to be tidier than, alas, we are.

I will say I agree with the Mayor that Victoria is not so litter-scattered as some other places. I looked out the office window a moment ago and, remembering that perfection is not reached this side of the Golden Gate, not at all meaning San Francisco by this reference, I thought that portion of Douglas Street under my scrutiny fairly clean. Indeed I will go further and affirm that on my recent visit to the old land few cities I encountered, largish ones anyway, could be held up as an example of extreme cleanliness. None of which excuses us, of course, so let's dump our rubbish where we bought to—in the civic trash cans.

Reports from Ottawa

THE real merit of Parliament's labors during the last three and one-half months cannot as yet be assessed because only time will tell how wise were the acts passed and the actions taken.

With that reservation, however, Parliament and the government have fair cause for satisfaction with their achievements of the session. There was a heavy legislative program; it was effectuated piece by piece in a planned effort to overcome problems and improve the wellbeing of the people, and the hard work and political courage necessary to implement it were not lacking.

The most pressing problem facing the country is the business recession, and the Conservative government produced an impressive program to cope with it. Parts of the program, such as the $100,000,000 the government plugged into the housing loans, have already proved beneficial to the economy. Others, like roads in the Arctic and the South Saskatchewan River project, appear to be of dubious economic value measured in terms of dollar return from dollar investment, but they may well be proved in time to be fully justified as investments in national development. But regardless of this, they all help fill the need of creating jobs for the jobless.

The government rejected the Liberals' theory that the proper way to combat recession is to cut taxes. Instead, the government held the line on taxes, while planning to borrow $1,500,000,000 over tax revenues for heavy government spending to spur the economy.

This took courage. If the program fails, public sentiment may turn against the Tories who wouldn't cut taxes.

Defence and foreign relations are the other major areas of significant change and, I think, progress during the past session.

Parliament approved integration of Canadian and American continental air defences after a confused debate which indicated the government was accepting the inevitable without knowing exactly where it would lead. But then, in the important kiss-and-make-up conference between Premier Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower in Ottawa two months ago, a joint Canada-United States committee of cabinet ministers to deal with problems of mutual defence was born.

Subsequently Diefenbaker publicly buried his apprehensions—real or fancied—over the "derogatory" effects that United States military installations in the Arctic, mainly radar, might have on Canadian sovereignty. And he opened northern air stations to use by tanker planes of the United States Strategic Air Force.

Our relations with the United States have recently been more difficult than with any other country, including Russia. The reason is conflicting economic interests. The Conservatives used popular resentment of economic injury at American hands to win two elections; are now busily trowelling smooth the path to economic understanding, consideration and co-operation.

This trowelling includes formation of a joint parliamentary-congressional committee to exchange views and broaden the base of the growing rapport between Ottawa and Washington. It also includes an abandonment of the totally unrealistic "get tough" policy which the government, found produces brave headlines but poor results.

The session in a sentence: the government did what it promised; Parliament did what it was asked to do, and the country got back to normal with strong majority government.

The Package Deal

Just Grin and Buy It

(From The Ottawa Journal)

THE "package deal" approach to life is getting us down.

It has many faces. The bottle of pills that is so expensive must owe much of its cost to the mammoth bottle which is so large that it usually has to be stuffed with cotton batting by the druggist.

The chocolate bar now has a long piece of cardboard under it, to make the wrapping stand out as though it were a very long bar indeed—but the bar sits in its tent like a small chocolate.

Buy an automobile, and if you're not careful the "extras" which you don't want any part of are compulsory, obligatory, mandatory and expensive.

Select a nice long-playing record and it comes with so much fancy casing and beautiful art work that its price would surely be cut a third if you could buy the record itself in a simple dust case.

Some soft drink bottles look like quarts and contain eye-drops.

A new shirt in a store carries 50 cents worth of pins and transparent wrapping—if we take into account the cost of labor in preparation of that cover-all.

A fellow seeking to buy a sturdy serviceable motorboat is looked upon as a fuddy-duddy if he won't pay for chrome from here to there and the costliest of fittings.

Even going to a football game these days means sitting in on some kind of a band-ballet performance; when they trotted out some entertainment on the field at half time in the old days it was short and sweet and didn't delay the game. We now have the referees and players waiting about to say nothing of the public until the intermission show reaches its grand conclusion.

It used to be so you could take things or leave 'em. Now you've got to take them—and pay for them! As the husband did who according to the New Yorker magazine was going through his wife's club bills at month's end and saw one made out:

Chocolate Sundae ..... 20 cents
(No whipped cream) ..... 15 cents
..... 40 cents

It is the day of the huckster, the gimick, the something-for-nothing thrown in, the fringe benefit. You can't beat it, just grin and buy it.

The Packsack

of GREGORY CLARK

IT could be that the happiest people are the least organized. Nothing upsets a highly-organized housewife, for example, more than having happy-go-lucky guests arrive who throw her tidy house into disorder, who leave their clothes flung where they fall, who go into the kitchen and soon have every pot and pan and dish strewn all over the place.

Nothing excites such acute distress in a well-organized family as when one of the members of the family departs from the established routine. For example, the well-organized family is very strict with regard to its social contacts. And then one of the girls brings home a boy she met at a corn roast.

A properly organized family brings up a boy to be a credit to the family. He is guided into good grades at school, and shows every promise of being the graduate engineer that is expected of him. And all of a sudden, he decides to go to Yellowknife and drive a truck.

But with the disorganized, all this is water over the dam. It seems to me sloppy housekeepers are far less upset by the occurrence of the unplanned than are their organized counterpart. Which raises the question: is the planned world into which we are inexorably being pressed going to be a happy world?

So I Go

A-Fishing

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

WHEN Peter said, "I go a-fishing," he was disappointed and fed-up. His companions felt the same way and replied, "We also go with thee." They went out and fished all night and "caught nothing." But that was not the whole story.

A few weeks ago I was fed-up, along with most readers of the news about the negotiations for a summit conference, and I suddenly decided to go a-fishing alone. I fished all day for two of those weeks and caught nothing. That is not the whole truth either, for I did hook two small bass and a fairly large pickerel about this long. It was longer than that, of course, proportionately, but you get the idea.

Speaking of fish measurements always reminds me of a cartoon in Punch many years ago which depicted a man returning home along a country lane at midnight from an anglers' dinner, at which the members compared notes on the sizes of fish caught in the past season. Meditating upon the fish stories he had heard, the mellow angler's attention was attracted to a scarecrow with its arms outspread at right angles. "Liar!" he exclaimed.

All fishermen are said to be liars, more or less. But on the fishing grounds or at the lodge where their catch is displayed in the evening, the dead fish lie there and tell the whole truth. The successful fisherman may be excused for a little dramatization of how he lured that big one to the bait, and how long and skillfully he wrestled with it before landing. And no fish story is worth the telling that does not include a thrilling account of the bigger one that got away.

Personally, I can testify to the extraordinary size of a fish that gets away. In the first place, it must be big or it would never get away. And no angler with any pride in his art would admit that a normal-sized fish beat him to the draw. Moreover, how is he to know the exact size of the thing he has got on the end of his line if it does not leap out of the water? Most big fish are caught at depth and must be tired out before bringing them to the surface. Admittedly there are occasions when, after playing adroitly for half an hour with a big one at the bottom, the tired angler may haul up the branch of a tree or an old boot.

But the true Waltonian, unlike the golfer, never or hardly ever gives away to profanity on such occasions. Even though at the end of a laborious day he returns empty-handed, he is never discouraged. He may casually remark that the fishing is "not as good as it used to be" in those waters, although in his heart he knows that it never was.

But he is an incorrigible optimist and will go out early next morning armed with the latest tackle and every kind of live and dead bait in the firm belief that there are more and bigger fish in that lake than ever were caught—and catch nothing. He will return as cheerfully as he went out. A cheerful idiot.

Now, Mr. Khrushchev, what was that you were saying about a summit some weeks ago?

Your school nurse will the day their child is being ex-survey your child's past series aimed in order to talk over all of immunizations and you will health matters with the doctor be informed of any necessary Children in other grades will booster shots.

Eye, Ear Defects

The check-up by the doctor may show up unsuspected or minor defects of eyes or ears. A child who has impaired hearing or vision will not do his best at school. Besides getting low marks, he may become discouraged or have difficulty in making adjustments. You may want advice, as many parents do about the great number of colds and coughs the average newcomer has once he starts school. Health habits, good meals and similar factors which relate to a high level of health may all be discussed with the doctor or school nurse.

The public health nurse makes regular visits to all schools throughout the year. Should the classroom teacher, parent or even the pupil wish some health service it is always available. Conditions which require treatment are referred to a child's family physician as the school health service is entirely preventive in nature.

In addition to her regular duties every nurse tries to hold a conference with each teacher in her school in regard to the health status of all her pupils. In this way a teacher who has observed some slight change in a pupil's health can report this to the nurse who can look more deeply into the problem.

Credit Union Robbed Of $5,000 by Bandit

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said a teen-aged armed bandit escaped Tuesday with $5,000 in cash from a caisse populaire (credit union) in St. Hilaire, Que., 25 miles east of Montreal. Teller Mrs. Corina Demers was alone in the bank at the time. She told police the youth held a revolver in her face and demanded money.

This discussion works particularly well in regard to emotional problems within the classroom. The teachers and nurse with the help of the school mental health service can frequently work out solutions to behavior difficulties which "might otherwise seriously hamper a child's performance."

Nationalist Move:

Yield Islands?

(From UPI and Reuters, CP)

WASHINGTON — American officials said yesterday negotiations between the U.S. and Red China might eventually lead to a U.S. recommendation that Nationalist China give up Quemoy and Matsu.

But they said the United States had no intention of making any concession as long as the Peiping regime was "pointing a gun at the back of the U.S."

The officials said any recommendation that the Nationalists give up their embattled strong-hold islands off the Red China coast was a long way off.

They said Red China would first have to take a good behavior pledge and carry it out long enough to convince this country it was sincerely acting like a good world citizen.

TAIPEI, Formosa — The Quemoy crisis fell into a lull again Wednesday as bad weather kept ships in port and the Communist artillery batteries which have been pounding the Nationalist outposts were silent most of the day.

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker now does not plan to pursue his suggestion that the United Nations intervene in the Formosa Strait dispute, it was learned Wednesday.

Feeling here is that there is no particular need for the UN to intervene now that the United States and Communist China are planning to hold ambassadorial talks in Warsaw on the situation.

MIDLAND PARK, N.J. (UPI) — Angry parents have asked matters because there was no the school board here to stop precedent. He said the state unscheduled lectures in marital bliss they claimed their daughters are getting from a 17-year-old classmate who was married during summer vacation.

The parents told the board the girl was a bad influence and should be expelled because her new life is like.

You Are Welcome Here U.K. Mayor Tells Negroes

LONDON (Reuters) — Show business and a small-town mayor hit back at British race violence Wednesday as a West Indian political leader declared that bad inter-group relations here would have a "tragic" effect on the rest of the world.

More than 25 top names in jazz and popular music set up "the stars" campaign for inter-racial friendship, an organization to combat race hatred.

Its leaders include white jazz trumpeter Humphrey Lyttelton, Negro songstress Cleo Laine, white band leader Ted Heath and other leading entertainers who have been urging an end to Britain's current wave of racial violence.

In the south coast resort town of Worthing, Mayor H. D. Steele called 20 Negro students to his office and told them: "You have entered into the life of the town with dignity and friendliness and we are very delighted to have you with us."

The mayor hoped they could write home to their parents and "tell them you are welcome in Worthing."

The warning of the world's stake in good British relations was voiced by Norman Manley, chief minister of Jamaica, birth place of many of the Negro immigrants involved in battles with whites in Nottingham and London in the last two weeks.

Manley, addressing 1,300 persons Wednesday night, told his audience they should learn to tolerate others and they would be tolerated in turn.

He was greeted with friendly cries of "Yeah, toleration, man" and "Go on, tell us father."

Manley denounced limitations on immigration as "contemptible surrender to violence and evil."

Barbados Prime Minister H. G. H. Cummins said of the race riots:

"The British Commonwealth cannot afford to have this sort of thing happening in Britain."

Parents Poisoning Their Own Children

By BARNEY MCKINLEY

Victoria parents are poisoning their children at an average rate of a dozen a month.

The deed is done by leaving toxic, caustic and other dangerous articles within easy reach of youngsters who will try the taste of anything once—and then have to be pumped out afterwards.

In the past 15 months close to 200 youngsters have been treated at the poison centre in Royal Jubilee Hospital after swallowing such dangerous substances as mothballs, shoe polish and kerosene.

To date none of the children treated at the centre in the emergency ward of the hospital has died. But dozens have been hospitalized and a number have had close calls.

Included in the list of materials that the average householder stores in those places and falls to remember are toxic are: bleach, polishes, garden sprays, paint thinners, turpentine, fuel oil, stove oil, draino, ball point pen ink, alcohol, paraffin, penicillin, deodorants, pills and medicines of dozens of kinds, bluing, insecticides, carbon tetrachloride "spot" cleaner.

DON'T LEAVE ANYTHING
Actually it doesn't do to leave much of anything lying around. Cosmetics, plastic glue, plants, putty, quinine, water color paint and a long list of other household items can start your offspring on the way to the stomach pump.

If he does have to go, the poison centre staff will jump to his aid although the service was set up in May, 1956, principally to organize and supply information on poisons and antidotes.

When your call comes in to the hospital the switchboard gives three rings on the emergency ward phone. That means a poison case and corresponds to her felled in fighting the Goldstream blaze last month.

Emergency services super-the child to emergency as quickly as possible—often this means police help.

GOES TO WORK

From there the whole machinery of the poison centre with its antidotes, its files on poisons, its medications and knowledge goes to work.

The pharmaceutical department, headed by J. F. Smith, who first organized the poison centre here, backs up the life-saving task and if necessary the resources of the B.C. Poison Control Council and the celebrated poison centre at Seattle can be called on.

Debbie and Eddie Part Ways As Liz Taylor Gossip Grows

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Debbie Reynolds, 26, and singer Eddie Fisher, 30, announced a legal separation Wednesday.

A joint statement released by Miss Reynolds' lawyer said no further action was being considered at this time.

HOME EMPTY

The separation came after Debbie took her two-year-old daughter and moved in with a friend, leaving the home already abandoned by Fisher Tuesday night.

Debbie refused to comment on widespread rumors that her friend and neighbor, actress Elizabeth Taylor, had come between her and Fisher.

"I'm still very much in love with Eddie," she said.

Asked by a reporter if she was the "other woman" in the case, she replied:

"I don't feel that I've taken Eddie away from Debbie, because they weren't getting along anyway."

Fisher also declined to elaborate on his statement that he and his wife were having a "misunderstanding."

Jury Clears Father

NANAIMO—Two-day fall as size trial ended here yesterday in dismissal of a criminal negligence charge against Melvin Edward Hanson, 27-year-old father of five.

Hanson was charged in connection with the traffic death Jan. 24 of Charles Norval Petrie, 20, following an accident on the Duncan-Lake Cowichan Road. Also killed in the crash was Robert Ketch, Youbou.

Dismissal of this first case in the assizes here followed an adjournment of about 1½ hour of the 10-man, two-woman jury. Presiding judge was Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane.

Crown counsel D. M. Cuncliffe called 11 witnesses to testify, while defence conducted by Sidney Clark of Nanaimo called none.

In his summation, Mr. Cuncliffe noted he felt there was clear evidence of "wanton and reckless disregard for the safety of others." Evidence was given that Hanson was in a state of intoxication during the day of the accident.

Mr. Clark noted: "The Crown has not produced any evidence showing Hanson to be the driver at the time of the accident." He said: "this raises the question of presumption and presumptions are fickle things to deal with when the liberty of a man is at stake."

He also said the chief witness Larry Ketch was cousin to both the deceased, thus "possibly unknowingly" prejudiced. The car was totally demolished in the accident, which instantly killed both Petrie and Robert Ketch.

Prize Blood Donor

DUNCAN—Gold maple leaf and certificates of honor have been presented to two residents of Duncan for their contribution of blood to the Red Cross.

The two men, Frederick S. Mills and York Lawson, have both given 20 pints of blood. Both men also received their award for giving 10 pints of blood at the same time eight or nine years ago.

Mr. Mills said that he first gave blood when advised by a medical orderly in the army that it would stop his too frequent nose bleed.

"But they almost butchered me when they took that first donation," he said "for they had great trouble and left both my arms black and blue."

Mr. Lawson said he always felt a lot better after giving blood, and wished they had blood donor clinics here more frequently.

Presentations were made by Mrs. Heather Ballock, president of the local Red Cross branch, and by Lyle Watson, who was chairman of the blood donor clinic sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A few dissenters were in favor of "holding the line."

One said he felt "we are darn well off compared to many in the community."

Decision was in reply to three questions submitted by association headquarters in Vancouver.

"The single man and woman are particularly hard hit," added president Joseph Sutton.

Evidence Tampering Charge Faces Pair

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — A charge of attempting to defeat the course of justice was laid yesterday against two Cumberland youths already facing two serious charges.

Kenneth Mackie and Robert W. McMullen, each about 20, were accused of tampering with police exhibits while in custody Tuesday at Cumberland. Magistrate John Ryland granted the pair bail totalling $6,000 each after a two-day hearing and reading of the other charges.

Mackie and McMullen now face joint counts of breaking into Cumberland Motors and stealing an empty safe Aug. 16, trafficking in a substance represented to be a drug and tampering with police exhibits.

Committal to a higher court was ordered late Wednesday on the theft charge, with bail set at $500 in two sureties. On the drug charge the two elected trial by a higher court and were remanded for preliminary hearing Friday at Courtenay with bail set at $5,000 for each. The same day the attempt to defeat justice charge will be heard, with bail $500 each.

Maximum sentences possible are 30 years' imprisonment, plus a whipping if they are convicted of the drug charge. Cumberland police declined to divulge what exhibits the prisoners had tried to tamper with.

Door-to-Door

Peanut Drive Allowed

The Optimist Club was refused permission by the city last spring to sell Easter baskets from door to door, but a "peanut drive" has been authorized in December because, City Manager C. C. Wyatt said yesterday, "peanuts are not in the same category as Christmas cards, light bulbs and Easter baskets."

The Optimist application was rejected after a group of merchants had objected to organizations competing with them without taking out licenses. Four organizations will take part in the peanut drive: the Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, the Cerebral Palsy Association, 89 Squadron (Kinsmen) Air Cadets and Bethel No. 2 and No. 27 Job's Daughters.

OTTAWA — A death sentence passed against John Krakowski, 64, for the rifle-slaying of his daughter-in-law near Sedalia, Alta., last Jan. 31, has been commuted by the cabinet to life imprisonment.

There is no evidence of any "Iron Curtain" in the exchange of astronomical data between Russian and Canadian observatories, Dr. R. M. Petrie said yesterday shortly after his arrival here from Moscow.

In fact, Canadian observatories, acting upon information from Russia, are supplying Russian astronomers with statistics gleaned from tracking their space satellites across this hemisphere, he said.

Dr. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain, is one of three Victoria astronomers who attended the 10th General Assembly of the International Astrophysical Union in Moscow Aug. 12 to 20 under the auspices of the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. The other astronomers, Dr. G. Ham Ogden and Edward Argyle, have not yet returned.

Local Reports Sent

Measurements of satellite photographs made through the 73-inch reflecting telescope on Little Saanich Mountain are sent to Russia as part of the International Geophysical Year program, Dr. Petrie said. Also, 26 copies of every report published by the local observatory are mailed to the U.S.S.R.

But, the exchange of knowledge is not a one-sided arrangement because Russian astronomical papers are sent to Canada and the mutual sharing of scientific information does not appear to be limited by political influences, he explained.

Freedom Enjoyed

Delegates were permitted to carry cameras and visit any part of the city, and so far as Dr. Petrie knew, none of the scientists were followed on these trips.

Russia is one of the leading countries of the world in some phases of astronomy and is fast catching up in others, he said. He was impressed by the extent to which the Soviet government supports scientific research, making available whatever staff and equipment are needed to accomplish any particular task.

Although part of the Russian equipment is obsolete, some is equal to the best that can be found anywhere, and bearing in mind the fact that Russia is an old country which did not devote sufficient funds to science until recent years, then on the whole, it would appear adequate enough, Dr. Petrie said.

Soviet astronomers "seemed to be highly enthusiastic and

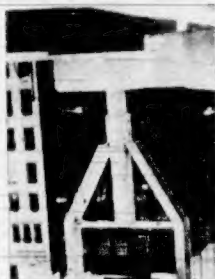

The "red carpet" was rolled out for the 800 delegates attending the largest gathering of the IAU since its inception in 1922, and the astronomers lived in the recently-constructed Hotel Ukraina in downtown Moscow, some four miles from Moscow University and the nearby Sternberg Institute where the meetings were held.

Menus were printed in the major languages, efficient bus service was provided from the hotel to the university and an endless round of sight-seeing tours and entertainment had been arranged.

devoted to their work. They were eager to show us their instruments and tell what they had accomplished," he stated. They also appeared quite capable of making full use of exchange papers and carrying on research from points where astronomers of other countries had stopped.

Skimpy Statements from Silent Service

Semi-Secrecy Veils Navy Mishaps

Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy is living up to the letter of the navy's reputation as the silent service.

In recent weeks it has drawn a veil of semi-secrecy over a series of untoward events in which a man was killed, two others injured, one seriously, and two naval vessels were damaged.

The navy phlegm has been exhibited in connection with the knife slaying of Able Seaman Aaron Jenkins in the crowded Nelles Block naval barracks at HMC Naden in Esquimalt, a fire aboard HMCS Cayuga in which two men were injured, and the incident in Vancouver harbor when HMCS Beacon Hill was damaged leaving her moored.

Tuesday, naval authorities announced an inquiry into circumstances surrounding the death of Jenkins, 23-year-old New Brunswick man fatally stabbed, Sept. 6, had been adjourned indefinitely.

Only a brief statement, giving few of the circumstances, was issued on the day of the seaman's early morning death from a stab wound in the chest.

The navy emphasized its inquiry into the death had no legal status.

Preliminary hearing on a charge of murder against Leo Anthony Mantha, 31, in connection with Jenkins' death, is due to open soon in Esquimalt police court.

At the same time a board of inquiry into a fire in the No. 1 boiler room of HMCS Cayuga while the destroyer was on exercises, was announced yesterday by naval authorities.

In the meantime, little information was being released on the nature of the fire or how two men were injured in the blaze, near Nanaimo, Tuesday.

Newsman were refused permission to visit the ship on her return to Esquimalt yesterday.

The navy said no such first-hand approach could be made pending the outcome of the board's inquiry. No date was set for its report.

One of the two men burned in the Cayuga fire was reported in serious condition at Naden Hospital, yesterday, with chest complications that necessitated a tracheotomy operation.

PO Gerald McDormand, 40, of 406 Prileane-Crescent, was described by naval doctors as seriously ill but satisfactory.

PO William Osecki, 28, of 901 Metchisin, second man injured in the blaze, was reported "doing well." Both men were brought to Naden Hospital from Nanaimo by ambulance with first and second-degree burns.

Still pending is a statement arising out of a third board of inquiry investigation into the damaging of HMCS Beacon Hill some weeks ago.

The ship was towed to Esquimalt after reportedly backing into old piling in Vancouver Harbor, but no report on cause or extent of damage has been released.

A statement on the Beacon Hill accident would be made in about a week or 10 days, the navy said this week.

Mayor Doesn't Want Probe of City Police

Mayor Percy Scurrell said yesterday he will vote against engaging a U.S. police chiefs' association to make a survey of the efficiency of the city police department.

The association informed the city police commission recently it would make a survey for about $8,500.

The price, "he mayor said, "is out of line for the time they would spend on it, and I don't think it's necessary. I don't think our force is badly run."

Jobless Benefits Expiring

Shipyards 'In Danger'

Work Soon Or Close

HAROLD HUSBAND
... we need contracts

Victoria shipyards are "in danger of being shut down or very seriously curtailed" if they do not win shipbuilding contracts soon, president Harold Husband of Victoria Machinery Depot said last night.

In supporting the campaign of a shipyards union to bring more work to local yards, Mr. Husband said: "We are in that position, and I would think Yarrow's is, too. We need a shipbuilding contract if we are to hold our engineering staff and other trained men."

STATEMENT OF THANKS

His comment followed a statement of thanks by James McConachie, business agent of the International Brotherhood of Shipbuilders, Local 191, to municipal councils and the Chamber of Commerce for their support of its campaign to have a destroyer escort and a provincial ferry built here.

Mr. McConachie said 985 skilled tradesmen are working in the two yards, compared to 2,067 at this time last year. He estimated the loss in wages and resultant revenue to local merchants as approximately $5,000,000 and said many men are "fast running out of unemployment benefits and will soon need welfare."

SEND DELEGATIONS

The union official said shipyards unions would continue to write to the two governments and might send delegations to the provincial government and to local MPs G. R. Pearkes and A. DeB. McPhillips.

He urged businessmen and the public to "do everything they can to help."

EVERY EFFORT

Mr. Husband and Yarrow's vice-president H. A. Wallace said in separate statements that each yard was "devoting every effort" to increase business, by consulting governments, diversification and "bidding on everything that comes up."

Both emphasized, however, that the yards cannot compete with Eastern Canadian yards for shipbuilding contracts because "our wages are too high—40 per cent higher than Eastern Canada."

DIVERSIFICATION

Examples of diversification were construction of propane tanks and considerable oil refinery equipment at VMD, and work on two large line yards for sawmills at Yarrow's.

"We support the union's campaign, very definitely," said Mr. Husband. "With wages high, and we are doing everything we can."

Frank Explanation Asked For Shelving Hospital

MAYOR SCURRELL

By 1960

Ferry Delay Likely

It is extremely doubtful whether the two new ferries to be built for the provincial government for the proposed "fast service" between Swartz Bay and the Mainland will be in service before early 1960, it was learned yesterday.

Premier Bennett had previously estimated that the service would start sometime next summer, possibly July, in order to benefit from the tourist season.

The government would still like to have the two ships built by July but realizes it is virtually asking for the impossible, informed sources said.

Tenders have only just been called and will not be opened until Nov. 14. It is expected that several more weeks will go by after this before the contracts are let.

Two completion dates are mentioned in the specifications for the two ships, expected to cost around $3,000,000 each. In submitting bids, tenders may choose either July 1, 1959, or February 1, 1960, as completion dates. This was seen as a "loophole" if it is impossible to build the two big vessels in six months.

The ships will be 329 feet long and 72 feet wide and will be equipped with a complete dining room and lounge space for passengers.

Pipe Bids Puzzle Scurrell

Mayor Percy Scurrell wondered "if this would be a case for a combined investigation" yesterday when the Greater Victoria water board received two tenders, not far apart in price, on a supply of pipe.

Water Commissioner Ronald Upward said he had heard that the lower bidder in this case had been the higher bidder by a similar amount on supplying pipe to Saanich.

The mayor recalled that the city a few days ago received four identical tenders on a supply of street lights.

In Time to Avert Water Shortage

Tunnel Ready in '65

By R. O. MARRION

A tunnel to replace the Sooke Lake water pipeline probably will be ready for service just barely in time to avoid a water shortage if it is started in 1960, water commissioner Ronald Upward said yesterday.

On the other hand, he indicated to the Greater Victoria water board he would be reluctant to start building the tunnel earlier.

The 5½-mile tunnel, expected to cost $7,500,000 or more, will run between Sooke Lake—to be dammed at a higher level than now—and the Japan Gulch reservoir.

Bids Called For Arcade

The city engineer has called tenders for arcading of the storefront on the southeast corner of Oak Bay Junction to provide for street-widening.

The pedestrian arcade in the lower storey to be removed and will provide motorists on Fort with a better view of Oak Bay Avenue around the corner, where at present they cannot see pedestrians starting to cross the street.

Mental Home Dire Need

Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association has called for "a frank explanation" of all reasons for the provincial government's decision to shelve plans for a 1,500-bed mental hospital on Vancouver Island.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, who blamed the move on inability to find enough trained mental hospital workers, was urged to "accept the challenge rather than give up without a real attempt to provide an acceptable solution."

"CANNOT COMPETE"

A statement from the branch executive, issued last night by president Mrs. Charles Rankham, referred to Mr. Black's statement in the legislature in February that "the government cannot compete without disturbing to an unacceptable degree the whole scale of civil service salaries."

"This implies an unwillingness to offer wages which will attract qualified staff," the executive said. "If there are reasons, not made clear, why the government cannot afford to offer adequate salaries, then surely a frank explanation is due."

GRAVE CONCERN

The statement voiced the branch's "regret and grave concern" over the decision and said the problem of mental illness is "acute," with five of every 1,000 Canadians needing hospital care and "more people suffering from mental illness than all other illnesses combined."

Lack of a mental hospital here "creates an intolerable situation" for the mental patient, his family and his doctors, the executive said. It increases the cost of recovery and causes "an inestimable cost in human suffering."

REGIONAL HOSPITALS

"This is contrary to the modern concept of treatment services—small, regional hospitals of 300 to 500 beds, located near medical facilities and in densely populated areas."

"Certainly all those unhappy families who suffer because of the lack of a hospital should at least be given a reasonable answer to the question of why staff is unobtainable."

Build Up Staffs

WINNIPEG (CP)—Universities should be prepared to double their teaching staffs to meet a corresponding increase in student enrolment within the next 10 or 15 years, a leading Commonwealth university administrator said here Tuesday.

Dr. F. G. Soper, vice-chancellor of the University of Otago in Dunedin, New Zealand, said one of the big problems is "how to build bridges between the teacher and the student" in the face of the tremendous expansions.

QUALICUM BEACH

A stained glass window, the gift of members of the congregation in memory of Quilcum men who fell in the Second World War, has been installed in the east end of St. Mark's Anglican Church. It is expected that more than 500,000 persons, now Archbishop Harold E. Sexton, will dedicate the memorial.

Loving Couples Traffic Hazard

DUNCAN — "Amorous couples" have so taken over a driveway off Gibbons Road which leads to a private residence, as well as being the city's road to the waterworks plant, that they have established what a resident described as an unofficial city park.

Mrs. F. G. Beauchant, in negotiating with the city for sale of land which the city will require to widen its road, commented that "this makes an admirable parking place for the hunters, bathers, hikers, fishermen, picnickers, blackberry pickers and amorous couples who seem to think this is a public park, owned by the city."

"Sometimes their autos obstruct my driveway so that I cannot reach my house by car," she said, offering to sell the city the land. G. M. Berry, city clerk, said that a satisfactory agreement had been reached with Mrs. Beauchant.

NANAIMO — Key speaker yesterday at the Northwest Public Power Association convention opened here was C. W. Nash of the B.C. Power Commission. The talk by Mr. Nash followed the welcome to more than 100 delegates by Mayor Pete Maffeo.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Thor Peterson of the April Point resort on Quadra Island escaped safely when his speed launch, the Phantom Lady, exploded and burned early yesterday in Discovery Passage, about 120 miles northwest of Vancouver.

He had to use his hands to paddle his small dinghy to shore as he failed to get the oars before abandoning the burning launch.

PORT ALBERNI — More than 40 executives of B.C.'s private radio and television industry arrived here yesterday for the B.C. Association of Broadcasters' convention.

Dr. John J. Deutsch, head of the department of economics and political science at UBC, will address the delegates at a banquet on Friday.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River village commission has rejected an offer of the area's community hall, but cancelled taxes on the property for the past three years.

The hall is administered by a board of directors drawn from local residents.

B.C. Power Commission's new thermal generating plant at Chemainus will not come into full operation until March or April, commission officials said yesterday.

The nine-month delay has been the result of "bugs."

DUNCAN — Russell Potts consulting engineer for the city told council this week the provincial government is going to put in $100,000 in storm sewer in the city to drain the Trans Canada Highway.

He said work will be done next year.

All-Time Curb On Water?

Oak Bay is planning permanent garden-sprinkling restrictions—none between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.—because of the growing use of home irrigation systems, Reeve Fred Norris said yesterday.

Reeve Norris told the Greater Victoria water board that so many Oak Bay homes now had the systems that "we have to say no more systems or no sprinkling between 9 and 9."

Otherwise, he said, the municipality would have to rebuild its water system, using bigger pipes at great expense.

Shopping Issue Still Hot

Controversial question of six-day versus five-day shopping may be raised again today in city council.

Council's finance committee decided to send a questionnaire to all licensed retailers.

But the Six-Day Shopping Week Committee delivered a letter to council yesterday, asserting that the questionnaire should inform the merchants of restrictions on the goods they may legally sell on "closed" Wednesday afternoons.

"If they are going back now to five-day shopping," a spokesman said, "they will have to enforce the law, and that will close the town up tight."

Mr. and Mrs. John Moran, builders of unusual home on Royal Oak Avenue. (Photo by Jim Ryan)

Imaginative Home 'Grows' Out of Hill

By EILEEN LEAROLD

Two imaginative Victorians are building a most attractive and unusual home.

The house is situated on a hillside, and the owners, Mr. and Mrs. John Moran, are building it in a most imaginative and unusual manner.

Families Bigger

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian families became bigger between 1951 and 1956. The bureau of statistics said yesterday the rise in the average family size in this period to 3.8 persons from 3.7 indicates a reversal of a trend of many years.

There was a sharp increase in the number of children and a proportionate decrease in families with no children or only one child at home.

Largest families were in Newfoundland and the smallest in British Columbia.

Pop's in Pink With Mink

LONDON (WNS) — British tailors, attending the International Convention of the Masculine Mode, claim that women are forcing men to drop conservative fashions in favor of fantastic costumes that reduce their dignity.

They were surprised to find that Germany and not Italy, displayed the most extreme colors and fashions.

The new male fashions included red, white and blue blazers, scarlet business suits, silver and gold dress suits and overcoats lined in pink mink.

How the Newspaper Helps Advertisers . . .

With an Accurately "MEASURED" Audience . . .

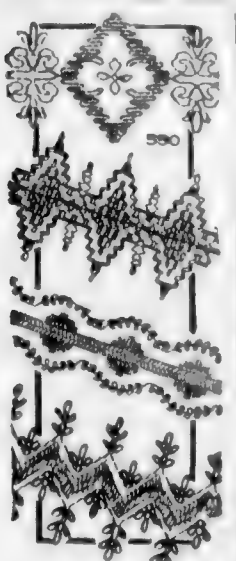

When you buy space in a newspaper, you know EXACTLY how many copies will be delivered . . . precisely the number of homes and families your sales message will reach. Through our membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulation, we can tell on a day-to-day basis our exact circulation figures. DOWN TO THE LAST COPY. NO OTHER ADVERTISING MEDIUM CAN MAKE THIS STATEMENT and show you the actual proof!

Be wary of claims made on the basis of "samplings" and "polls." Your common sense will tell you that rough estimates of audiences with whom there is no direct, day-to-day contact must be largely the figments of over-zealous imaginations. "NEWSPAPERS ARE ON THE RECORD." THEIR CIRCULATION FIGURES ARE AVAILABLE ON INQUIRY. There is no substitute for the factual, written record.

This newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulation, a non-profit, cooperative association of publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited at regular intervals by experienced ABC circulation auditors and their reports are made available to our advertisers without obligation.

Bloodless Bullfights Also Profitless

LINDSAY, Ont. (UPI)—The recent Lindsay bullfights were bloodless but the organizers saw a lot of red yesterday when they looked at the balance sheets for the fiesta.

The Chamber of Commerce, which staged the bullfights, reported it lost $9,849. It had been hoped to realize a profit of at least $20,000.

Line Up for Learning

Because of a shortage of technical schools in Rome, Italy, these parents spent a day and night queuing to be sure to get their children at one of the new technical institutes of the capital. Only 85 boys were admitted on the first day.

Enough Arms to Start War

Yachtload of Cuban Rebels Captured by Customs Men

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—A small boat carrying a yachtload of Cuban rebels was captured by U.S. customs men yesterday. The boat was carrying a large quantity of arms and ammunition, including machine guns, rifles, and hand grenades. The rebels were captured and are being held in custody.

War Survivors

Japanese Live On In Jungle

SADNEY, Australia (Reuters)—A colony of Japanese soldiers from the Second World War is living in dense jungle near the northern coast of Dutch New Guinea.

Rev. Albert Kromhout, a Baptist missionary, has been in New Guinea for 10 years. He says that he has seen a number of Japanese soldiers living in the jungle. He says that they are living in small huts made of bamboo and that they are growing rice and other crops. He says that they are also living in a state of isolation and that they are not in contact with the outside world.

The crew could not definitely say whether the men were Japanese, but were certain they were not natives. Kromhout said: "There were definitely no missions working in the area and the Dutch had no knowledge of a white settlement in the area."

Patrolling Pickets Boost Shop's Trade

VANCOUVER (UPI)—A Vancouver store's trade was boosted by a picket line of 100 women who patrolled the store's entrance yesterday. The pickets were protesting the store's policy of not hiring women. The store's manager said that the pickets were not allowed to enter the store and that they were not allowed to picket on the store's premises.

Notebook of a Spy Too Spicy, Say Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—The Literary Gazette called on Soviet parents yesterday to seize and burn every copy of a children's book called From the Notebook of a Spy. It charged that the book is pornographic.

The Gazette, Soviet auditor of art and literature, objected to spicy references in the book to the use of sex in espionage.

The Gazette ran several scolding excerpts from the book. Dozens of copies of which were run off this year for circulation in children's libraries.

Victoriana—Plus Some Frills

A high-spirited group of Victorians, including the late Mrs. J. H. McPherson, and a number of other Victorians, are planning to hold a series of parties in the city to celebrate the centennial of the arrival of the first Victoria-bound ship, the Victorian, in 1858.

The parties, which will be held on the 11th, 12th and 13th of September, will be a series of social events, including a dance, a luncheon and a dinner. The parties will be held at the Victoria Hotel, which was the first hotel in the city.

129 Killed On Roads This Year

A total of 129 men, women and children have been slaughtered on provincial highways during the first seven months of the year, motor vehicle branch officials reported yesterday.

Researcher to produce means to 20 times stronger than they are now will be outlined by Dr. Earl C. Roberts, University of Washington, to Vancouver Island chapter of the American Road & Builders Builders' Association.

129 Killed On Roads This Year

A total of 129 men, women and children have been slaughtered on provincial highways during the first seven months of the year, motor vehicle branch officials reported yesterday.

This is two more deaths than during the same period a year ago.

There has been a sharp decrease in the actual number of accidents in this period, however, and figures up to the end of July show a drop of 1,304 accidents from the 14,143 of a year ago.

Injuries increased by 90 to 1,114.

is his kind of dog food!

And, penny for penny, Burgerbits gives him TWICE the nourishment of prime beef hamburger... at only HALF the cost to you!

Veterinarian-developed to maintain stamina and build strong, healthy bodies, Dr. Ballard's Burgerbits is a meatier dog food, a complete nutritionally balanced diet which, when compared to prime beef hamburger, gives your pet twice the nourishment:

- TWICE the protein so essential to healthy growth and repair of body tissue
- TWICE the vitamins—B, A, and Niacin plus 3000 IU of Vitamin A and 1000 IU of Vitamin D (per lb) not found in hamburger
- TWICE the phosphorus and iron essential for strong, healthy bones and teeth and for good red blood

So easy to prepare—just mix with water, soup or milk! And Burgerbits actually conditions as it nourishes—for, besides providing a ready source of food energy, it conditions the system without scouring or binding.

Buy Burgerbits today at your favourite food store or pet shop.

Garbage Wharf Contract Goes To Vancouver

A twice difference of more 1958 $300,000 Community Chest than 5 per cent. has resulted in a Vancouver firm being favored for a city contract over a Victoria firm.

The Vancouver firm, J. Harold Falls, offered to build a reinforced concrete deck at the garbage wharf for $23,967.
Next lowest bid, from Victoria
Pile Driving Co., Ltd., was for $12,229 more.

"We want to encourage local companies, all being equal, but we don't want to penalize the taxpayer," said public works chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edge-
low. "If it was within 5 per cent, it should be given consideration," Ald. Hugh Ramsay agreed, "but this is more."

The committee also approved a $8,940 tender for pile-driving at the wharf. The low bid came from Pacific Pile Driving
Co. of Victoria.

'Conventions? I'm Agin 'Em!'

TORONTO (CP) — "Conventions? I'm agin 'em," says Margaret Perney, a Toronto board of education trustee.

Miss Perney was one of a number of officials interviewed about whether the board should spend $7,000 to send 13 of its 18 trustees to a meeting of the Canadian Education Association next week at Victoria.

Miss Perney says she is prejudiced and doesn't go to conventions herself. "But the money could be used for so many other educational matters," she adds, "perhaps for replacing some of the 88 portable school rooms still around the city, or improving facilities for the gifted child."

The amount is "peanuts when figured in with other expenditures," said Rev. John V. Mills, executive secretary of the Public School Trustees Association of Ontario and himself a trustee. He says the whole year's budget for all board officials wouldn't even build a one-room school.

The trek is 100 per cent justified, says Mr. Mills. "I don't see how we get."

Duke Uses

Girls' Legs As Yardstick

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke of Bedford says he always looks at a woman's legs because they are so often an indication as to the refinement of a woman's nature.

"There are possibly a lot of thoroughly bad girls, with lovely legs, but I always have a certain sympathy with a girl with good legs."

Doctor-Smokers Don't Practise What They Preach in Practice

TOKYO (UPI) — Heavy cigaret smokers who worry about getting lung cancer should attend one session of the fifth international congress on diseases of the chest.

The chain smoker would breathe a sigh of relief, and continue puffing away. Though cancer experts here warn about the possible link between smoking and lung cancer, it doesn't appear to affect their smoking habits. The lobby of the congress on diseases of the chest is filled with a blue cloud of cigaret, cigar and pipe smoke after each session.

The Tennessee Valley Authority stretches into seven states — Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama.

In an unofficial survey, it appeared that Japanese doctors preferred cigars, European doctors puffed away on cigars while the Americans smoked a variety of cigarets, pipes and cigars.

Three of the most eminent lung cancer specialists in the world smoked while relating their opinions on the connection between cigarets and lung cancer.

Bounders Skip With Hoops

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A group of bounders broke into the Wham-o Mfg. Company and rolled out with 15,000 of those plastic hoops the kids have been playing with. Police are looking for the hoopers.
